IT Auditor – Homebased

Description

A growing Internal Auditing business, based in Cannock, are currently looking for a IT Auditor to work for a range of clients across the UK. You will mainly be based at home, going into the office once a fortnight, so you don't need to be based too close to Cannock.

Ideally you will have been working on IT Auditing from an internal auditing position, either directly for an organisation or for an auditing consultancy. If this experience has been working on IT Audits for the public sector this would be ideal but working within the private sector would also be considered.

The company are growing and encourage career and skills development. Previous people who have joined the business have gone on to develop into a more senior role.

Apart from this, you will be rewarded with an excellent starting salary, ability to work from home and benefits package, you will be given a career track that will include obtaining industry qualifications that will help advance your career in the future.

Are you driven to securing an excellent career, and have a work ethic to make working from home work, I suggest you making an application now.
